

Lions International Peace Poster Contest Sunbury Lions Club

Each year, Lions Clubs around the world sponsor the Lions International Peace Poster Contest in local schools and youth groups to encourage young people worldwide ages 11 through 13 to artistically express their vision of peace. Participants may use a variety of medium including charcoal, crayon, pencil, and paint to express the theme. Twenty four international finalists are selected each year, representing 350,000 participants world wide. The theme for the 2011-2012 school year Peace Poster Contest is: Children Know Peace

The local 2011 Big Walnut winners of the Lions International Peace Poster contest are pictured in the first photo, from the left, second place Kimberly Crislip, first place Becca Bogantz and third place Haley Griffith.

In the photo above is Lion Rick Eyman ready to present the awards. Lion Dick Logan pictured to the right in this photo was the Club's liaison with the local schools to monitor the process. The first place winner received a $100 savings bond, The second and third place each received a $50 dollar bond. The local finalists will have the opportunity to additional judging phases at state and international levels.